STAND BY YOUR COLORS, BOYS, AND WE WIN.

REPUBLICAN VICTORY IS ASSURED IF ONLY REPUBLICANS DO THEIR DUTY.

Let every Republican be at his post from now until the polls close on November 5th.

In the Russellville Senatorial district Judge Petrie, of Todd county, was nominated and while the district is slightly Democratic he is likely to win.

The season is open every day in the week and half the night. The church is open only once or twice a week and sometimes only once a month.

GEN. HARDIN is still following Col. Bradley over the State and persists in perpetrating the same silly negro domination speech upon the people.

The Kentucky Press Association, which met at Hopkinsville on the 23rd, ult., had a most delightful session. The trip to the Atlanta Exposition was a great success and the press boys now have visions of Niagara or Yellow Stone Park for next year's outing.

The Madison county Republicans have nominated Hon. E. T. Burnham. He belongs to one of the wealthiest and most influential families of that county and as the normal Democratic majority is less than 200, McCreary will have a hard time to elect his man Chenault.

The Republicans of Bourbon county nominated John Stuart, of Paris. The Bourbon News in speaking of the nomination says: "Mr. Stuart is a popular and well known gentleman of this city. He will poll more votes than any other candidate who might have been selected by the Republicans."

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat has the following to say of Wat and his little campaign:

"Gen Hardin is still chasing the bugaboo of negro equality through the blue grass and dog-fennel of Kentucky, but he isn't making the voters believe that he ought to be elected Governor on account of such services."

The city of Lexington has given to women the right of suffrage in the election of school officers, but the registration, which closed on Tuesday, indicates anything but a howling success. The colored women registered and the white women did not to any great extent, and thereby hangs a tale, perhaps of woe.

The fight between Tammany and the other branch of the Democracy and the split in Tammany show that the Democratic party in New York has not improved its position much since last year. The Republican plurality in that State will be 150,000 in 1895, but it will be larger than ten minutes after the polls close there will be no doubt as to the general result.

The colored orator, Prof. Booker T. Washington, who made such a favorable impression by his oration delivered at the opening of the Atlanta Exposition, is the principal teacher of a colored school at Tuskegee, Ala. The school has grown from one teacher, thirty pupils and a donation of $8,000 from its establishment in 1881 to sixty-six teachers, and 1,000 pupils at the present. The school is industrial rather than literary and owns forty buildings and 2,000 acres of land.

Thousands of citizens everywhere are signing petitions asking that our country recognize the Cuban Revolutionists. These people are struggling for liberty under a yoke far more galling than that we threw off in 1776-83 and simple justice demands that Uncle Sam extend the hand of friendly recognition to these Southern patriots. All citizens who will sign such a petition as indicated above, will have an opportunity by calling at THE REPUBLICAN Office or by suggesting to a representative of THE REPUBLICAN that this is their desire. Hurrah for Cuban liberty!

DURING the past four years Rev. E. E. Pate has been located among us as Circuit rider on the Hartford Circuit of the M. E. Church, South. Four years is the limit, no preacher being allowed to keep one charge longer than that length of time. Bro. Pate has been a faithful minister and endeared himself to our people of every name and order, inasmuch that all regret exceedingly that he must go away. He is one of nature's noblemen and he and his most excellent family will always be pleasantly remembered. They go bearing our best wishes for success in their new field of labor, Bro. Pate having been assigned to the Hanfordsburg Circuit for next year.

BARNETT, Bradley and victory.

THE Louisville Conference of the M. E. Church, South, which convened at Madisonville last week, adjourned Wednesday of this week after a very interesting session.

Mr. B. D. RINGO has accepted the Democratic nomination for the Legislature. He comes out in a well written letter of acceptance, in which he purports to give reasons why he should be elected. In view of almost certain defeat, there can be no doubt that Mr. Ringo is brave even to the border of rashness.

CONVICTIONS OR NOT.

The Bible Rader makes the following point: "In this harbed wire age it is queer how many people manage to keep on the fence."

The Southern School commenting thereon says: "Yes, and they not only keep on the fence, but they manage to touch the ground on both sides with their feet. Some people are born with convictions, some achieve convictions, and not a few have convictions thrust upon them by the majority manage to get along without any. They seem to think there is a law against carrying concealed deadly convictions."

THAT HARMONY ADDRESS.

An exchange sums up the sense and meaning of the Harmony Address, issued by the Democratic Committee some weeks ago and we clip the following from its caustic arraignment: "We want harmony, and we mean by 'harmony' that it don't make any difference what we believe about principle; it don't make any difference if the Democrats have kept Kentucky back; it don't make any difference if we are running a platform of one sort and a candidate of another, we must shut our eyes and vote the ticket because it is called Democratic. It means beat the Republicans fair or foul. By Heaven! don't let them get a chance at the books! We hate the Republicans like we do the devil; don't let them get a chance at the salaries."

Four weeks from next Tuesday the people of Kentucky will determine who shall be their officers during the ensuing official term. Farther than that they will be called upon in making this choice of officers to determine whether or not they will endorse the mismanagement of State affairs by the Democratic party during the past thirty years, and whether a party whose platform declares one thing and whose candidates declare another, shall continue to control the policies of the State. If the people of Kentucky endorse Hardin by electing him, under what obligation is he to carry out what the people desire? If the people will not resent Hardin's insults what would they resent?

HAS EVERY MAN HIS PRICE?

Over and over again the pessimist declares that every man has his price and just as frequently those who take a more liberal view of the frailties of humanity declare their unbounded faith in the belief that some men some where, and a few men whom they believe they could name are unpurchasable, either for wealth, or fame, or favor. This latter is by far the more pleasant and more desirable view and we subscribe to it.

Yet there come times and circumstances which try even the strongest faith in humanity. It is too often true that those who make great pretensions, seemingly without boast, to high moral courage and those whom the masses believe steadfast and immovable in their devotion to independent, untrammelled advocacy of right, are they who when met by a state of case which requires the sacrifice of a principle or the incurring of probable pecuniary loss will bow the knee to Baal and trundle like a slave. The higher the reputation of the offender, the greater the fall and more complete the dismay of his admirers. Characters capable of such cringing, are they who in critical moments desert the friends who at the expense of censure, perhaps, have in and out of reason espoused the cause of those back-boneless moralists. We repeat, such things tend to shake faith, but not to destroy it. They prove conclusively, however, that the fallen were lacking in the true grit and that their friends put their estimates too high.

While students, the repeated declaration that such things lie in store for us along the pilgrimage, seemed strange and are only vaguely understood, but when brought face to face with examples of real, downright desertion of friends and principles for nothing, if not for money or favor, we are brought to our senses and for the first time we learn never to forget that while it is not true of all, it is true that many men have their price. You kind reader, have experienced these things and you can call examples to mind now wherein proud pretensions bend the pregnant hinges of the knee that favor many follow fawning.

The African Mining Boom. The people of England have the reputation of being very prudent and conservative in their financial operations, and it is probably true that so far as ordinary investments are concerned, they proceed cautiously and take few chances. But it is no less true that of all the people in the world they are most disposed to put money into extraordinary or illegitimate forms of speculation, where there seems to be promise of large profits. There is no more inviting field in the world than London for the man with some new kind of a boom and a plausible way of presenting its alleged advantages. The capitalists of that city, as well as the smaller seekers of fortune, are always ready to listen to fairy stories that are told, and to buy shares in enterprises that are skillfully advertised. Just now they are falling over one another, as the saying is, in their anxiety to purchase African mining stocks. There appears to be a regular craze among them for the opportunity to participate in the reported fabulous gains derived from the gold mines of the Dark Continent. The papers contain columns of quotations of the stocks of the numerous companies, and the aggregate daily sales of such paper far exceed the transactions in any other kind of securities.

It is surprising to read that shares in mines about which there can not possibly be any really reliable information have been sold at an advance of 10, 15 and even 20 per cent in a few weeks; and one case is mentioned where the shares of a group of eight companies increased by an average of more than 100 per cent in three months. The principle figure in this feverish speculation is a man named Barnard, who is said to have visited the African colonies as a clown in a circus, and there gained control of some very valuable properties, in which he is now permitted the English people to become interested on terms very advantageous to himself, however it may turn out for them. There is good reason to believe that gold exists in Africa to a considerable extent; the actual output in evidence to substantiate this view, and to give assurance of further products. But by no means follows that the shares which are being scrambled for in London represent mines as a reliable character. More likely, these stocks are mainly inflated and fictitious, and will prove to be a sad disappointment to those who are expecting to be made wealthy by them. There is always a reaction in such crazes, and then comes the crash that leaves a new sound and wholesome lesson that the general result of a boom is to benefit the calculating and unscrupulous and venturous many.

Woolen Manufacturers Disappointed.

The demand for American wool was light toward the close of last month, owing to the heavy imports of foreign wool. In addition to this, Messrs. Justice, Bateman & Co. assigned "another cause for the present quietness." They say that "manufacturers are disappointed in regard to orders for their fabrics." At the time when the prices for goods had to be fixed they were out of wool; the new clip was in the hands of speculators whose demands as to price seemed extravagant and dearer wool was inevitable. Successful labor strikes involving higher wages in addition to dearer wool pointed to the necessity of higher prices for goods, and manufacturers refused to take orders except at an advance. Foreign manufacturers at this time having ample supplies of wool secured at the lowest prices on record, and being free from the embarrassments which surrounded American manufacturers, of which they were quick to see their advantage, freely booked orders at lower values than domestic manufacturers could name. Liberal orders went abroad for goods that heretofore had made at home. When American manufacturers discovered that the wool boom was over and that American prices had failed to reach those current at this time last year, they modified their prices for goods. But it was then too late to recover the business that had been secured by foreign mills. Thus it is that owing to heavy imports of raw wool and the loss of considerable business for the American mills, the home demand for wool has been too light to give that buoyant tone to the American market that is now being enjoyed by foreign wool markets.

A WILD BEAST.

The People in the Southern Part of Rowan County Terrified.

MORGAN, Ky., Sept. 28.—Great excitement prevails in the southern part of Morgan county over the appearance of a wild beast in that vicinity. Mrs. Wright, of near Lexington, was to town Friday afternoon, and says that about 5 o'clock Tuesday evening she started for a strip of woods near her house for a cow, when the strange animal came out of the thicket and crept a head and entered a dense woods about 200 yards from where it first made its appearance.

Mrs. Wright says she was not more than 100 yards from the animal, and had an excellent opportunity of seeing it, which she describes as being larger than any dog she has ever seen, of a tawny color, and very bushy about the head and shoulders. Mrs. Wright is a very intelligent lady of about 35 years, and says she knows it was a lion. The next morning a 3-year-old calf of a neighbor's was found on the head and a search revealed a portion of its remains near where Mrs. Wright saw the beast the evening before.

PRISONERS ESCAPE.

They Knew Their Way Out of Jail and Took to the Road.

MORGAN, Ky., Sept. 30.—A wholesale jail delivery took place at West Liberty, Morgan county, Sunday evening at 6 o'clock. Those who escaped were Henry Freeman, who murdered Lloyd Arnett, in August; Johnson Williams, charged with assaulting his 12-year-old niece; Daniel J. Smith, charged with the murder of Matthew Whitl, grand larceny. When the deputy jailer took their supper to them they all crowded to the door, and when he opened the door they rushed out, and all ran out over his body. When the jailer came to give the alarm, and a posse was organized and is now searching for them. Another party was organized here under Sheriff Tinsley. Freeman is a dangerous man. The Morgan county officials say they don't think he will be taken alive. Smith and Whitl are charged with stealing the horses from the jail, which was captured by revenue officers last week in Magdalen county and sent to Major Shelby at Lexington as a present.
